

2012 Evolution Counter Terrorism Conference

February 8-9, 2012

Asan, South Korea

The Korean National Police Agency and the International Tactical Officers Training Association (ITOTA) present the 2012 Evolution Counter Terrorism Conference located in Asan, South Korea. This international training conference will focus on current counter terrorism topics and threats. This event seeks to strengthen ties within the global Counter-Terrorism community.

The 2012 Evolution Counter Terrorism Conference is a two day event developed to provide a “mainstream” educational platform with a dual theme of Command and Leadership and Counter Terrorism Operations, which meshes the tactical training and knowledge of both law enforcement and military special operations. You will hear from the leading subject matter experts from the international counter terrorism community. This conference offers the most innovative and main stream training solutions available. The presentations scheduled are designed to show how tactics are evolving to generate enhanced results for the operator and the commander utilizing them. It’s about providing options and securing ones homeland from within and abroad.

For more information contact:

Aaron Cunningham at (773) 655-7862/ acunningham@itota.us

Sung Joo Lee at (773) 655-7621/ sjlee@itota.us.